Then it is plain that the only proper way to estimate a crime is to consider all its surrounding circumstances. It will not do to say that the mugder, ripes, aroms, outrages, assuits, committed in Tunnessee see in general the same as those committed in Illinois, unless it can be shown shad the impediting motives coincide. But this can not be done, for that is the main difference between these offences in the one finite and in the other. The condition of sfaller here is very peen list and very o'mbarrassity. It is possible for an individual or a government to be hated and willides for small of charity and mercy.
